rime which cost this country its Chief Magistrate, were received by President Roosevelt yesterday. K. H. Gerelius von Schiele, Lord Bishop of Wishy, one of the highest prelates of the Swedish Lutheran Church, conveyed the expressions of good well from the Scandinavian monarch. Bishop von Schiele is in this country for the purpose of visiting Swedish Lattheran colleges and academits and the larger congregations of that denomination, for the purpose of strengthening their relations with the mother country and the purpose of strengthening their relations with the mother country and the purpose of strengthening their relations with the mother country and the parent church.

Accompanied by the Minister from Sweden and Norway, A. Grip, and A. A. Adre, the Assistant Secretary of State. Bishop von Schiele was received by the President in the Red Prior. The felicitations which he bore from his sovereign were verbal. On behalf of King Oscar, the royal family, and the people of Sweden and Norway, the Bishop extended greeting and an expression of friendship. Marquis Ito, the former Prime Minister of Japan, will be received by President Roosevelt after he returns from the bientennial ceremonies, at which the maruis will be present. Midori Komatz, secretary of the Japanese Legation, called upon Secretary Cortelyou yester-day and formally flotified him of the Incention of Marquis Ito to pay his respects to President Rossevelt. No appointment with the President has as yet been made, however. The matter will be definitely arranged later.

President Boosevelt will not refer to ship subsidies in his message to the Fifty-seventh Congress, although attention will be called to the condition of the merchant marine. Recommendation for legislation to secure its increase will be made, but no bill or policy regarding Government encouragement for the building up of the merchant marine will be specified. From time to time it has been stated that President Roosevelt would deal vigorously with the subsidy problem in his message. That he is gaining all the detailed information possible and is drawing from sources representing varied views on this topic is evident from the number of public men closely identified with legislation in this direction at the last session with whom he has conferred. Senator Frye, most radical of pre-subsidy Senators, was in conference with the President several times. Senator Knute Nelson, rather conservative in his subsidy sentiments, was another with whom the President bas talked. The discussion of the subject with Representative Minor is the most recent.

Cardinal Gibbons, the highest officer of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, will be received by President Rossevelt on Getober S. It will be the first time that an official representative of the Roman Church has called upon the President. Dr. D. J. Stafford, rector of St. Patrick's Church, arranged the interview with the President yesterday.

John A. Kasson, who was recently septominently identified with reciprocity negotiations, saw President Rossevelt for a short time, but did not discuss that cubject at any length.

An exhibition of American products and American industries will be made in the famous London Crystal Palace during the caronation season next year. Ernest Schenck, President of the Crystal Palace Company, who is in this country in the interests of the project, called at the White House yesterday, acompanied by William H. marriage of Miss Glades Froulk and Mr. Edward Chapman Smith, of Glenside, Ph., occurred at the residence f Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Pfoulke a Finliadelphia, the former home of Mr. Ficulte and the family home of the The ceremony occurred in the tapestry gallery and was solemnized by Rev. John Cornell, who was paster of the Episcopal Church at Nice, France throughout the five years' residence there of Mr. Froulke and his family, and who is now in Washington on his annual winter visit.

The tapestries which Mr. Ffoulke brought from abroad, and which form the rarest private collection in this country, and possibly in the world, are hung from ceiling to dado in a vast apartment whose waxed floor is so polished that the palms are reflected as in a pool. The rear wall was screened to the ceiling with tropical transformed the space into a sylvan chancel. The suggestion was heightened by a floral rail of smilax and white chrysanthemums, the gateway left open and banked high on either side with a mass of snowy bloom. Starred against the wall and his bride wrought in white blossoms Haley's string orchestra, stationed near the windows behind a jungle of paim foliage, played the wedding march that an-nounced the descent of the bride. From the entrance of the gallery to the floral chancel a ribboned aisie was formed by Gardiner Hubbard and Charles M. Ffoulke, jr., both lads picturesque in white flannel.

The bride, as fresh and lovely as the blossoms that decked her wedding bower, entered with her father, by whom she mond ornaments, the gift of the groom. Miss Helen Froulke, as maid of honor ing also an anniversary of the wedding being also an anniversary of the wedding of the bride's parents.

After her father's sudden death five years ngo Miss Field began giving readings from his works, and soon attained recognition as an entertainer. She has also done some creditable writing. She was her father's chum and confidante, and has inherited much of his style and wit. Mr. and Mrs. Englar will reside in Chicago, and the bride will continue her literary work.

With her white wedding robe the bride wore the tulie veil worn by her mother at her own wedding, and her ornaments were the diamonds which her grandmother wore when herself a bride.

One of the gifts is a magnificent silver service which has been in the Field family for many years. It was presented by Mrs. Willard, of Greenfield, Ill., and the bride is the third Mary. Flein to possess it. Mrs. John F. Ballantyne, of this city, was among the guests.

Several years ago, when it was announced that Engene Field's daughter was to give a reading here, a number of prominent newspaper men who had known and loved "Gene" went to the Church of Gur Faither to do hunor to his daughter. She was a tail slip of a girl in a simple black frock, with a slightly low neck and short sleeves, and her brown hair was brushed back and tucked up in a quaint way that was pecullarly and artistically her own. And as she stood there and recited the home poems that her father had written about his dear ones there was a pathetic little break in her volce now and then that arbieved for her such heartfelt enthusism that it weemed a double pity that the noce could not be there to origo; the triumph of his cidest child, whom he called "Trottle, my chum."

Miss Mamie Howe and Mr. Edward Conservers married quicity at the resident called "Trottle, my chum." Army Orders. First Lieut, David P. Friday's Our Remnant Day.

The reputation and continued success of our Friday Bargain Sale rest upon merit alone. We state the facts as briefiy and tersely as we know how, and our customers respond so quickly and so often because they know our statements to be facts always. Remnants accumulate quickly; odds and ends gather thick and fast and continuously; merchandise becomes soiled, mussed, or otherwise unfit for regular stock, etc. These are the inevitable results of an active, progressive business. And as our policy demands the immediate and complete clearance of all such goods, we put low prices on them to accomplish this end. Hosts of remnants this week of every kind and condition, and all marked for easy buying.
